

Prompt

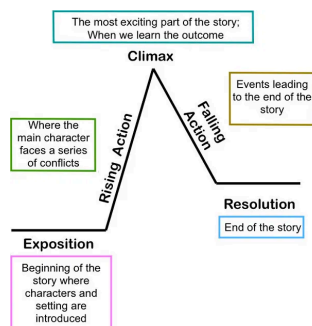

Write a Short Story about being a stranger in a strange land.

Write a Short Story

...about being a stranger in a strange land. Your setting could be another country, another time period, or even an alien world. Have a theme in mind and an idea about life that you want to convey. Then write your story.

Ask yourself:

- What is the setting? Is it unfamiliar to the character, to the reader, or both?
- Who is the main character? What other characters will there be? What is the main conflict?
- What are the key developments I want to present in the plot? How do these plot points support the theme I want to express?
- Make sure to use dialogue in your story. Make your characters speak to each other. Follow the rules for making dialogue we discussed in class.

Plot

Exposition

Who will your characters be? (protagonist and antagonist)
Lila, Aria (best friends), Silas (antagonist), crow

When and where is your story going to take place?
Present day in an alternate universe

Conflict

What is going to be the problem that your protagonist is going to have to overcome?
Escaping the alternate universe alive

Rising Action

Come up with 3 big events that will happen in your story, or more?

1. Lila and Aria wake up in the alternate universe confused, not understanding what happened and as they pull themselves together they both look around and realize that they are in some place they don't recognize and it's weirdly quiet.
2. They meet a lost traveler who knows his way around and has been there for years with no way out.
3. When nightfall hits everything is different. Everything around them starts to change and start to hear unsettling noises including seeing some weird creatures appear along.

Climax

What will be the most exciting part of your story? When the conflict gets resolved. When they both figure out that the "lost traveler" isn't there to help them escape but to keep them in the alternate universe forever.

Falling Action

What will happen after the climax? What happens to the protagonist and the antagonist? Where do they go?

The crow makes a loud screech to distract Silas so the girls can run away. The girls run away and rely on the hints they have found around the alternate world to find the time machine and fast. They find the machine and they work together to activate it. After the screeching stops Silas finally puts himself together and lashes out in anger while the girls are home.

Resolution

How will the story end?

The girls made it back to where they started, happy they have finally made it back to where they started. They run away leaving the abandoned factory telling themselves they won't go near any abandoned places ever again. As they make their way back home they feel something off. Everything looks normal and there is normal noise and people again but they feel that lingering effect of the alternate world. Are they really home? Or are they still in the alternate world made to look like their home?

When you finish this outline, you will be ready to start writing your story. The story will be written on writable, it will be posted there next.
